

Science Program Leader – Environment Research and Technology Group (PD-2459)

Supporting Information

Specific skills and selection criteria:

1. A PhD or B. Science (with relevant experience) in Environmental Science or Environmental Engineering.
2. Demonstrated leadership and expertise in advancing the frontiers of Environmental Research through the development and application of novel nuclear and isotopic techniques.
3. Significant track record in planning and delivering research and commercial projects in Environmental Science, including managing multidisciplinary teams, budgets, materials and regulatory compliance.
4. Extensive professional and scientific networks in Environmental Science, with the ability to develop and apply innovative solutions for technical, scientific or engineering challenges.
5. Strong publication track record in Environmental Science, with demonstrated ability to lead and contribute to sustained, high-quality peer-reviewed research outputs in high-impact journals.
6. Experience in stakeholder engagement, including providing strategic advice to leadership, contributing to government advice and representing ANSTO in national and international forums in Environmental Science.